DISPUTES JUDGE MULQUEEN FLATLY IN CONTEMPT CASE

Merely Echoes of the Row Get Out and Neither Principal Will Elucidate—But the Judge Has an Idea That Pawnbrokers Have Had Easy Siding.

District Attorney Jerome and Judge Mulqueen of General Sessions had a heated discussion in court yesterday. The trouble arose in a contempt proceeding brought against a lawyer. When the case was called there were but few in the court, as it was near recess time. Simpson, the Forty-second street pawnbroker, had been concerned in a case in Judge Mulqueen's court last week and was represented in the matter by Donald Cameron. In the case, then, Judge Mulqueen had ordered Cameron to produce a diamond which had been loaned for $90. Cameron failed to have the diamond in court, at the required time and Judge Mulqueen committed him for contempt of court.

Cameron engaged counsel, who got a writ of habeas corpus from Justice Thaux of the Supreme Court pending a hearing of the original charge of contempt. Yesterday Judge Mulqueen asked Assistant District Attorney Johnstone, who was in the Simpson case, what decision had been made in the proceedings against Cameron. Mr. Johnstone told Judge Mulqueen what had been done by Cameron and asked that he be permitted to bring Cameron into court before Judge Mulqueen and have him purged of the contempt, as the subpoena for the diamond had been issued to Simpson and not to Cameron and therefore Cameron was not knowingly guilty of an act of contempt to the court. Judge Mulqueen colored at the suggestion of the Assistant District Attorney and leaning over the desk said in a loud voice:

"Is the District Attorney in the employ of the pawnbrokers of this city? It looks that way to me. I am going to give a statement to the press on the matter."

Assistant District Attorney Johnstone took offense at the Judge's remark and went upstairs to Mr. Jerome's office at once.

The next thing seen was the tail end of District Attorney Jerome's coatails disappearing in the direction of Judge Mulqueen's court.

Just what happened in the court room one could be found in the building yesterday who knew absolutely, but there was a preliminary skirmish between Mr. Jerome and the Judge, and then the District Attorney was heard to say:

"It is absolutely false and you know it." Replying to Mr. Jerome Judge Mulqueen referred to Mr. Johnstone as an "underling." This also was heard by the District Attorney's wrath and he told Judge Mulqueen flatly that Mr. Johnstone was not underling, but his assistant, and that he was in the court representing the people of the county. Mr. Jerome then turned and left the court room.

Both men were asked at once about the contempt case. Judge Mulqueen said he would not go further to say. Judge Mulqueen declined to talk and also refused to give out to the press the statement he had pronounced.

When this deal is closed it is probable that night riding will be at an end in Kentucky and law will be restored in the tobacco war in central Kentucky has just been ended by George C. Graddy, owner of the largest crop of burley tobacco grown independently of the American Tobacco Company. Graddy was having a "night rider" and employed a detail of guards to protect his interests. He grew suspicious of one of the men after the man had almost killed him, and the supposed accomplice of his gun, and with the assistance of several other guards searched the man and found on him a contract guaranteeing him $2,000 and to destroy the "owner and crop of tobacco."

Graddy now has his farm so mined that any one approaching the barns not familiar with the location of the underground tunnels would be liable to more explosions, thereby warning the guards of his approach.

CHINESE WOMAN ARRESTED

First Ever Arraigned in Tombs Court

The wife of Lee How, who lives at 1 Doyers street, is one of the few Chinese women in Chinatown. It has been many months, however, since Mrs. Lee How was seen about the chop suey restaurants, because rheumatism has crept into her arms and legs, and though young in years she has the appearance of a shriveled old woman. The police took her to the Tombs police court yesterday afternoon—really carried her there, for she cannot walk—and told the Magistrate that Chin Poy had said that she had robbed him of $700.

Many women find their way sooner or later into the Tombs court, but Mrs. Lee How was the first native of the Celestial Empire to appear there. Miss Coleman, the probation officer, became interested, and finding that the woman could speak a little English took her part, for she had no lawyer.

Chin Poy was ready to press the charge and was aided by a lawyer and an interpreter. He said that while he was asleep in the room of his friend, Lee How, Mrs. Lee had crept in and taken from the folds of his jacket all the money he had in the world.

The story which Miss Coleman told on behalf of the woman was quite different. Chin Poy, she said, was a Chinese man, who had come here and asked for a loan of $10. She had refused, and he declared that he would have her arrested. Then came the police and the indignity of arrest and the court.

"It isn't possible that this woman could have taken the money. She could not have grasped it. Look at her hands. They are like the hands of a child. She is a feeble member toward Magistrate Herrman."

The Judge himself did not seem much impressed by the charge and parole. He put her in the custody of her husband until next Tuesday. Lee took his wife in his arms and carried her from the court room.

WHITE SLAVE CASE

Indictments Likely to Grow out of the Rescue of Frances Collins

The Grand Jury began yesterday an investigation into the case of Frances Collins, the fifteen-year-old girl who was rescued from her alleged "disorderly" house by agents of the Children's Society. In one of the houses raided at the time was found a book which was said to contain the names of 400 disorderly houses. This book was before the Grand Jury yesterday, as was also Frances Collins.

The four women arrested in the raids were Frances Taylor, Carrie Dunan, Julia R. King and Mrs. Sherwood. Detectives Pissara and Butts were also before the Grand Jury, which is expected to report on the case on Monday. It is said that several indictments will be filed.

GIRLS AND HISTORY AND GIRLS

Place the Place to See Beauty and Learn Something Today

Kimono girls, Indian princesses, Janie Merediths, Frisclles, Dutch girls, orange girls, veiled Turkish beauties, girls with powdered hair and court plaster, little girls and big girls, all surrounded the mere man who got off at the ballroom floor of the Plaza yesterday afternoon. The occasion for all this was a historical conference and bazaar, which opened yesterday and will last through to-day for the benefit of the City History Club, of which Mrs. Robert Abbe is the president.

The City History Club is really made up of seventy little clubs formed for the public schools to stir up feelings of patriotism and local pride in the children by visiting spots of historical interest. Many men and women prominent in society have been working for days planning the bazaar and the programme of the conference which goes on simultaneously with the sale. The ballroom of the hotel contained an Indian wigwam, a reproduction of an old English book store, an art studio, a Turkish bazaar, an exhibition of things of historical interest, not the least of which was a gold cross containing, according to the announcement, a fragment of one of the nails of Columbus, loaned for the occasion by John Boyd Thatcher of Albany and guarded by two very solemn looking Bantams in full uniform.

At the Turkish booth coffee was served by women in Turkish costume, one being Mme. Mundi-Bey, wife of the Turkish Consul-General.

President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton and Andrew Carnegie helped to open the bazaar yesterday afternoon. Dr. Wilson said that the business of the City History Club was not simply to visit historical spots but to create a "community consciousness."

"The trouble to-day," he said, "is that we are not big enough to have a large unselfish group. The City History Club will undoubtedly bring on the stage a generation with a certain common consciousness of New York as a community. The only reason you are interested in yourself is because you know your past. The same is true as regards the community."

Mr. Carnegie said that the City History Club would do a great deal, if it brought the child born in the city somewhat nearer in his advantages to the child born in the country.

BIG TOBACCO DEAL ON FOOT

It Is Closed It May End Night Riding in Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 13.—A conference lasting twenty-four hours has been going on in this city between the leading members of the Burley Tobacco Society and the American Tobacco Company, which will be continued to-morrow with every likelihood that a deal between the two will be closed, involving the sale of 150,000 pounds of tobacco at an average price of 15 cents a pound. The total amount that would be distributed to Kentucky farmers should the deal be closed would be over $7,000,000.

If the deal is closed it is probable that night riding will be at an end in Kentucky and law will be restored in the tobacco war in central Kentucky has just been ended by George C. Graddy, owner of the largest crop of burley tobacco grown independently of the American Tobacco Company. Graddy was having a "night rider" and employed a detail of guards to protect his interests. Graddy now has his farm so mined that any one approaching the barns not familiar with the location of the underground tunnels would be liable to more explosions, thereby warning the guards of his approach.

THE REAL ESTATE MARKET

ADOLPH LEWISOHN BUYS A BROADWAY BLOCK FRONT

Henry Phillips, Charles Scribner, E. Hayward Perry, Joseph H. Hunt, David Montgomery and Henry Morgenstau also buyers of high grade Realty.

A striking proof of the substantial character of the real estate business here yesterday must be furnished by merely bringing together the names of some of the buyers mentioned in the brokerage reports. These include Henry Phillips, Adolph Lewisoohn, Charles Scribner, E. Hayward Perry, Joseph H. Hunt, David Montgomery, the Henry Morgenstau Company and Daniel B. Freedman. The purchase by Henry Phillips stands of course in a class by itself, being of a purely philanthropic nature. It comprises a block of sixty lots in Brooklyn on which model tenements are to be erected. The rest of the buyers, however, invest their money in a variety of economic motives and their purchases include private dwellings, vacant land and income yielding realty. It is pretty good evidence of improved conditions when so many capitalists, bankers, merchants, professional men and real estate operators of note are induced at one and the same time by reasons sufficient to themselves to acquire valuable real estate in many sorts and in many parts of the town.
